To the Editors of The Epitome
Gentlemen

It gives me great pleasure to accept the dedication of The Epitome as an evidence of the kindly feeling of the students of Belhigh to me. I have felt deeply interested in the University from the time of its foundation, and as a trustee and sincere well wisher, have rejoiced in the growth of the Institution and take pride in its good and thorough work.

Sincerely yours
John Fritz

This Book

IS DEDICATED TO

John Fritz

whose long service as a Trustee of this University and constant interest in her welfare and advancement, generously manifested in his recent donation and personal supervision of our Engineering Laboratory, have won him the unbounded love and gratitude of all Lehigh men.

In permanent recognition of this great gift the University has named it

The Fritz Engineering Laboratory

In its simple yet most effective and practical design, its solid construction, and perfect appointments, it is a fitting monument of the great Engineer who designed, equipped, and presented it as an evidence of his interest in, and appreciation of Lehigh's honest work

Preface

W

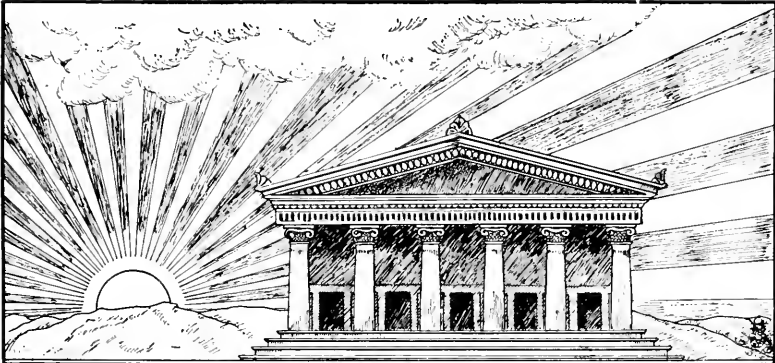

E lack that gift that can call upon the Muses for aid in introducing this 1911 Epitome, and we can only use the plainest terms in presenting this book to you. "We have finished our task. How well, you are the better judge. We have lent all our efforts to make this book worthy of you and the University it represents. If we have succeeded, this is the best Epitome ever published, for to be representative of Lehigh this last product must be its best. If we have failed we can only quote the poet Pope:

"For what is writ is writ,
Would it were worthier."

Charles M. Schwab

AMONG the many things which have happened during the past year significant of Lehigh's good fortune, stands prominent the election of Mr. Charles M. Schwab to the Board of Trustees.

Upon the Trustees devolves the management of the University and to be most efficient the individual members must in themselves possess the qualities of good management. The ability of Mr. Schwab in this direction is of more than ordinary rank; his interest in Lehigh has been manifested on more than one occasion, so that his acceptance of this honor is welcomed by the entire student body.

times. It is therefore with a knowledge of having lived too soon, and “A PROPHE'T is without honor save in his own country.” The greatest men of all ages, who have lived in memory and been lauded through all generations, men whose thoughts, words and acts have exerted a mighty influence throughout all time, were little known and appreciated in their own time or day. There are few living heroes and few witches in the hall of fame for the great men of the present. Crucial happenings in the lives of nations, epoch-making events in the world's history have awaited the pen of the historian of later a feeling of utter emptiness, that the historian undertakes to chronicle the history of the illustrious class of 1910.

On a beautiful day in September in 1906, Old Lehigh awoke to find her sacred precincts invaded by our array of strong and sturdy youths, gathered from the four corners of the earth. Our first encounter was with the faculty in an engagement known as "entrance exams.," in which we lost many a valiant fellow. But after the reorganization under the banner of 1910, we decided upon a systematic four years' siege of the institution.

In a brief résumé of the happenings of this eventful period, space demands the omission of much that might be said, while discretion suggests the suppression of a few things that might be left unsaid. Our first appearance on the campus as a body called forth wildest yells of derision from the men of '09, but they sang in a minor key after the class rushes, and after a few of them later had been given a free ride to the "Fem. Sem.," to be exhibited and humiliated before the eyes of the girls in that place. It is a time-honored custom that both sides claim the victory in the class rushes, but from our point of view we easily outclassed them.

Soon afterward on Founder's Day, we clashed with them on the Athletic field and as we are all bound to meet reversals some time we took ours there. In the interim some of our number were unwilling pupils to private lessons given in the use of the paste brush. One incidence still fresh in our memories is our first banquet as a class in Lehigh, and the many friendships formed at this function have been cherished throughout our college course.

A part of our Sophomore year was spent in making ourselves known to the class of 1911. We all felt just a little more important when we were privileged to order the Freshmen off the grass and see that their attendance at cheering practice was regular. The result of our Founder's Day sports may be found in previous histories and 1911 can give a more interesting account than we.

The greatest impediment at this time to the progress of the 1910 cohorts was demon Calculus. Some passed at the first onslaught, some had recourse to a "Re," and others did not pass at all. However, it must be said for those who had been the true companions of the subject, that they were the most enthusiastic participants in the Cremation of Calculus.

The title of upperclassmen was first applied to us in our Junior Year and affected the class in various ways. Some began to make speeches in college meetings and other wrote articles on college spirit in the Brown and White. The most important class occurrences of the Junior year was the Oratorical Contest and the Junior Prom, both of which were up to the usual standard, and passed successfully in every respect.

As Seniors, though slightly reduced in numbers, we have upheld in a dignified manner the former prestige of 1909. Thus far no events of the present year have attracted startling interest, and we may quietly meditate upon the laurels already won, while we look forward to Commencement Week for the fulfilment of our most cherished hopes.

The historian is handicapped in that he cannot tell of the things that are not yet; but he has visions of world-renowned engineers, distinguished statesmen, and noted diplomats, who will add glory to the fair name of 1910.

We all regret to leave the scene of our college days, and we shall miss the companionship of classmates and the assistance and encouragement of professors. Again as Freshmen, the Class of 1910 will enter the world of strife and struggle, and in this great combat we trust that the bright visions of youth will be fulfilled.

Commentarii de Bellum Classium.

(Being a free translation of extracts from an ancient manuscript, dated 1910 A.D., discovered in the Archives of Lehigh University in the year 3050, this extremely interesting document is undoubtedly genuine. It throws much light upon a hitherto little known age and is an invaluable addition to the history of those stirring times. The EPIPHONE is indebted to the Faculty of said University for permission to reprint these extracts.)—Ed.

WHEN first we came into this region from the Fatherland, it was held by three tribes, one of which was the "Nineteen-eightus," another the "Nineteen-ninus" and a third, which in their language was called "Nineteen-tenari" but in ours, Sophomores. These three tribes differed greatly among themselves as to their personality, their customs, and their reputations. The first of these was composed chiefly of old men, far past the age of military service. They were a peace-loving people and devoted mainly to raising beards. The second tribe, Ninus, was composed of men, somewhat more active, but these were weakened by previous warfare to this extent, that they were no longer able to defend themselves. On account of these things, there remained only one tribe from whom our army feared any opposition. The Tenari were a valiant people, but untrained in any but barbarian warfare. But most particularly were they hampered by the lack of efficient generals. To our army, on the contrary, in this respect the gods were propitious. Having ascertained the nature of the country, through spies, our forces advanced northward from the coast until the enemy was sighted near the banks of a great river that flows through that land. Here a decisive battle was fought on the sixth day before the Ides of October, which is according to the reckoning in that country, Founder's Day, so-called after one of their household gods. The strategy of our leaders and training of our legions were far superior to the unorganized warfare of the enemy, and the victory was overwhelming, but two of our leaders were slain. The first fell while leading an advance against a troop of cavalry in the thickest of the fight. The second had five "ponies" shot from under him before he, too, placed his name among the martyrs of a mighty cause. Unmindful of his own safety, a third took command, and, though sorely wounded and handicapped by a host of unfavorable "conditions," fought his way through a long and tedious "summer campaign" to complete victory and full authority of the country.

The Battle of Bull Durham being won, our army went into winter quarters across the river. From this position they made frequent sallies against the other tribes, riding forth when necessity demanded or opportunity permitted, to administer merited rebukes to the enemy either in basketball, boxing, or whatever branch of warfare they pleased to use.

Upon the renewal of hostilities after the summer season, that is, in the month of October, 1908, when our army returned to its stronghold, we found the fort and the earthworks in the possession of a new enemy, which were called "Twelve-ites." This tribe, among which was a great number of old women and infants, had come down from the mountains to the south in our absence. Led hither by the hope of plunder in the neighboring towns (most especially in those towns to the west of our camp), they would steal out about the end of the first watch, and after spending the night in scouting around and feasting, would return home in the early hours of the morning, heavy with plunder. Such was the situation upon our arrival. After a series of forced marches our enemy arrived at the north bank of the river. Theirs was stationed on the opposite bank. A messenger was despatched to the enemy's camp with the message—"Either you must depart peaceably into the land from which you came, together with all your household goods and animals, or else prepare for battle." To this their leader replied that "neither would they depart from a land which they occupied by the favor of the gods nor would they submit to insolence from any one." At the same time, our watch reported a red setter dog to have passed the camp, and this being interpreted as a favorable omen, we offered sacrifices to the god of chemistry, the god of mathematics, and the god of physics and our army advanced. By the end of the second watch the last of our rear guard had crossed the pontoon and stood in the land of the enemy. The sixth legion began the attack in front, with the fourth and fifth legions as reserve forces. The enemy, being well fortified, easily repulsed the sixth legion with great slaughter. The enemy was armed with long poles on the end of which were brushes and with these weapons our soldiers were unfamiliar. The reserve forces came to the aid of the sixth legion and while they were engaged in a hand-to-hand encounter, four cohorts of the tenth legion were sent around to attack the enemy from the rear. These soldiers, becoming confused in the darkness, were surrounded and taken prisoners, bound hand and foot, two by two and led in the dungeon to await torture. When it was made known to our leader, through spies, that his favored tenth legion were imprisoned, he resolved upon a bold trick. Ordering his troops to withdraw, as though in flight, he retreated some thousand paces eastward. The enemy was completely deceived and at once betook themselves to the fort to celebrate the victory by amusing themselves with the prisoners. But the gods always favor a just cause, and having halted his army a short distance away, our leader straightened out his battle line and returning by a circuitous route, he attacked the fort from the rear. Both by the quickness of the attack and the interest of the enemy in their sports, they were taken by surprise. The slaughter of the enemy that followed was such as no man has ever seen since. The few that escaped death at the hands of our forces were either trampled under foot in the panic or were captured and taken as slaves into our camp. So great was the effect of his victory on the neighboring tribes that embassies came from all directions to our army offering tribute and giving oaths of allegiance to the valor of Nineteen-Eleven.

[ED. NOTE.—A contemporaneous historian refers to a second encounter with this same enemy, on the anniversary of the Founder's Day battle, in which he maintains that Nineteen-Eleven was defeated. Since this author does not mention it, however, there is little doubt that the account is spurious.]

1912

John A. Hart, President

AFTER a successful Freshman year the class of 1912 returned to their Alma Mater, full of enthusiasm and class spirit, to take up the work of the second year. Although our numbers had somewhat decreased, there were enough of the old "faithfuls" on hand to take care of the incoming class of "Babes," who much needed our castigation and advice. Though our advice was not as gentle as perhaps they had been accustomed to, nevertheless we administered it in such a manner as would be productive of the most good.

The night before college opened there was the usual rush in front of Packer Hall, and although the "Frosh" outnumbered us we early showed the strength of Nineteen Twelve. The few weeks which elapsed between the opening of college and Founder's Day was one round of fun for the upperclassmen. We played the host on every occasion, and many a sorry crowd of Freshmen were heard singing "Everybody Knows How Green I Am." The Freshmen proved themselves to be acrobats and vaudeville stars of no mean ability.

In due course of time the first Freshman class-meeting was scheduled but not held. The usual order of business was reversed, instead of allowing them to hold their class-meeting and then rush them at the close of it, we decided that that they should not have a meeting at all. About ten or fifteen fellows who had made pretty good scores at bowling were stationed at the top of the stairs, and as the Freshmen mounted they were bowled down to other men stationed below.

Little need be said about the night before Founder's Day, for everybody knows:

They left us in a hurry,
Left us in a mighty hurry,
Stating that they could not stand it,
Stating in emphatic language
How they'd run before they'd stand it.

Founder's Day came at last with a warm sun beating down upon the crowd of alumni, students, and friends, gathered to do honor to the name of Packer. The Freshmen now had a chance of redeeming themselves, but, alas, they fell easy prey for the Sophomores. We not only won the baseball game and relay race but the football game also. In the baseball game it was evident from the beginning that ours was the stronger team, as shown by the score of 4-1 in our favor. Everybody in touch with the practices of the two football teams conceded the game to the Freshmen but our fellows went in with the determination to win and defeated Nineteen-Thirteen by 10-0.

When the class of Nineteen-Twelve defeated the Freshmen in all of the Founder's Day sports, they made a record which is difficult to equal and which seldom, if ever, has been accomplished before. During our first two years of college, we have shown the true Lehigh spirit, both in class affairs and in the university-at-large. We are well represented in all branches of college activities, and may this spirit never die, and may our motto ever be onward and upward!

HISTORIAN.

1913 FRESHMAN

R. Campbell, President

BORN—On September 22, 1909, another Freshman class. What tidings these of a great event! What auguries of success might have been drawn from the auspicious beginning of 1913's career, when the next day in the presence of cheering thousands, the day-old Hercules conquered the revengeful serpent and planted his banner far on the Sophomore side of the line! But alas! evil stars hung over too prominent members of the class, for many were they who pushed pennies with their noses and did other acts of heroism on the floor of Taylor Hall.

Unlike preceding years, the period between the opening of college and Founder's Day was characterized by few of the impromptu rushes and "free for alls" that have enlivened the fall months for other classes. in fact, even the banner-raising fever seemed to be on the wane, and the few that were put up succumbed quickly to violence or to the elements.

The two lower classes were compelled to satisfy their natural animosity in the customary rushes and they did it. In the rush on the slope before Packer Hall, on the night before the opening of college, the Freshmen came out victorious, although hindered by the dense clouds of dust which overhung the field of battle. A vigorous fight in front of the Wyandotte followed the rush. The climax came, however, in the banner rush on the Athletic field, where the Freshmen overwhelmed their adversaries, and by rushing their banner as far as the fence, signalized their advent with a brilliant victory.

From this time on, except for the occasional hazing of a few unwary Freshmen, caught after seven o'clock, there was little excitement until the night before Founder's Day. At that time the adventurous spirit of the class was shown. After assembling on Broadhead Avenue, smaller bands were formed and posters pasted up the entire night. In addition, we rid the town of those posters put up by the Sophomores, who displayed remarkable ability in being out without making themselves conspicuous (this may be explained by the fact that they oscillated from Fourth Street, near Wyandotte to the southeast corner of Fourth and New Streets).

Founder's Day itself was from the Freshman standpoint hardly up to the standard of the night before, but all three of the contests were hard-fought, and 1913 can well be proud of her representatives. The Lafayette Smoker, however, made a pleasing contrast, for at that the Freshmen were decidedly in evidence, 1913's wrestling team taking three out of five matches from the Sophomores.

In conclusion the class of 1913 has received a good many hard knocks, both individually and as a whole, but these fall to the lot of every entering class, and just as they have instilled the Lehigh spirit into the breasts of preceding classes, so have they done with 1913.

The Sophomore's Song

Tune—"Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay."

There was an old fellow,
Who, though he was mellow,
Made us work with might and main,
And taught us to struggle
With infinite trouble
To differentiate without pain.

His name is Pop Meeker,
Who made us the weaker
With formulae very antique.
But now we are through
We have shown that we knew
More than we could be taught.

CHORUS:

Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay-I-Ay
Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay!
We don't care what becomes of us
Now we've passed our Calculus.
Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay-I-Ay
Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay
Sing a song, clear and loud,
We are out of the cloud.
Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay.

J. L. B., '11.

Calculus Minus U

Tune—"Blind Pig."

A little stocky Sophomore,
Way up on the third floor
Of Packer Hall, was standing
In front of Thorny's door.
The names of all the students
Who were exempt were there,
And this poor Sophomore wondered
How his royal self did fare.
He stood upon a chair to see it well
And then he slowly started out to spell.

CHORUS:

C-A-L-C and L-S,
That spells it, well I should guess;
My, but there's no "u" there
It must be gone, I wonder where?
Pop Meaker overheard his talk
While he was picking up loose chalk
And said young man you must not pout
We had to go and leave you out.

H. W. P., '12.

Calculus Won't Worry Us Again

Tune—"Stein Song."

Oh! that Math. Department had us,
Kept us in their clutches strong,
On our rosters they compelled us
To put up with it for long;
But we're through now with trouble
And with our math. work double,
And Calculus conditions
Won't worry us again.

Let's forget all conic sections
And old Thorny's "algebra,"
For with all such vile connections
We have drawn ourselves away;
And "These men are all warned,
They must do better work"
Is a thing that we are through with;
It won't worry us again.

A. W., '11.

A Sophomore's Woe

Tune—"Rainbow."

One dark morning last December, up in
Packer Hall,
There was a Sophomore, so they say,
He was a Sophomore in a way—
Expects to graduate some day—
He had a problem on the blackboard that he thought was right
And it sure was very long,
But Pop Lambert said:—"It's wrong,"
And he started to shout:—

CHORUS:

"Put down your constant;
It's no good with no constant.
You lout!
Don't stand and pout!
Rub it all out!
Bring me that big ruler
I'll show you I'm no fooler.
Now run, and put that constant down."
H. W. P., '12.

End of Calculus

Tune—"Cheer Up, Mary."

Now our Sophomore year is ended, ended,
And with Calculus we're through,
Though Sidney, Jack and Thorny,
Thorny,
Still keep of us a few;
But class F we are all out of, out of,
And also of class E,
So forget those differentials, entials,
Now we know that we are through.

Oh! you secant cube of alpha, alpha,
Forms to differentiate,
And you log arc cosine beta, beta,
Sons of guns to integrate.
Oh! you logarithmic spirals, spirals,
And polar cardioid;
If he thought we would forget you, get you.
Thorny would be quite annoyed.
A. W., '11.

Sayre Park

THIS beautiful park, situated on South Mountain, stands as a monument to Robert H. Sayre, Trustee of Lehigh University, from its founding in 1866 to his death in 1907.

Sayre Park was made possible by the donation of $100,000 by the children of Robert H. Sayre to perpetuate his name in a spot where a lifetime of earnest work was spent for the advancement of Lehigh. The students and alumni can well take pride in this gift, not alone from its great beauty but also from the inspiration it lends for Lehigh's future development.

Class of '78 Flag Pole

LEHIGH has rejoiced in many gifts, some of which are chronicled in this book, but in their variety and volume the '78 Flag Pole occupies a unique place. While all donations of any nature to the University are for the student body, nevertheless they are all presented to and directed by the Board of Trustees. In this respect '78 has differed the order with her gift by presenting it directly to the student body. The students have accepted this gift with every due appreciation and have made among themselves proper provision for the preservation of its beauty.

George Hain, President

THE first performance of the 1909 production of the Mustard and Cheese was given in the South Bethlehem Opera House on April 24th. The "Colonials," as this year's show was called, was written by Thomas B. Donaldson. As the name implies, the production was an operetta of the revolutionary period, having a simple but well defined plot, which permitted of the introduction of a number of clever songs and dances.

Two trips were arranged for the thespians, one to Wilkes-Barre and the other to Pottsville. The performance at Wilkes-Barre was given on April 28th, and although there was a good house the audience was not as large as the year previous, the reason in all probability being lack of advertising.

In Pottsville a performance was given in the afternoon and evening of Saturday, May 1st. Following the matinee, a tea was given the association by Miss Lee. A very large audience enjoyed the show in the evening and the cast and chorus put forth their best efforts to show their appreciation of the hospitality tendered them.

The last performance was given in South Bethlehem on June 7th. The idea of giving a show at this time was inaugurated by the members of the 1908 association, in order that the alumni, returning for commencement, might see the production. Thus far the June performance seems to have met with success, for each year large houses have made the members of the association feel that their efforts have been thoroughly appreciated.

WHILE the football season of 1909 was by no means a brilliant one, it could not be termed unsuccessful. The schedule included nine games, some of them being with teams of a higher calibre than Lehigh has met in the last three years.

The season opened with the line of the preceding season, practically intact; but an entire new backfield had to be developed. As a result, team work was hampered throughout the entire season.

Lafayette was represented by one of the strongest teams of her history, and the game was an uphill fight almost from the start.

Very few men will be lost through graduation, and the prospects for the coming season of 1910 are bright.

IT is to be regretted that this summary cannot present a more successful season, but there are several reasons to account for our lack of success. The first is the regrettable absence of Captain Morris from the game. Though his place was ably filled by R. A. Harrower, in the field, it is likely a different story could be told if the dash and leading of Morris had been present. The second reason is the change in the coaching system, not that the change may have been unwise, but it must be acceded that it takes men time to accustom themselves to a new order of things.

Half of the team remains for next season and in the underclasses there is an abundance of promising material, so that we hope and expect under Captain-Elect Osbourne a most successful season.

While the past season cannot be spoken of as a success, comparison with other years will show a team of good standing at Lehigh. In the three meets held, Lehigh was beaten only once decisively, the other two meets being practically tied. In the Intercollegiates a good showing was made, considering the number of men representing Lehigh. Three new records were placed on the boards, and with the majority of the team left in college we can look forward to the best track team of this institution.

THE 1910 basketball season was opened amid most peculiar circumstances. Owing to graduation and illness five regular members of last year's 'Varsity, including the captain-elect, failed to return to college, and as a result but two lettered men formed the nucleus of this season's quintet. As a final stroke of ill-luck, one of these was forced to stop the game early in the year, and the making of an almost complete team was necessitated. This burden was greatly relieved by the strength of the scrub team, which furnished several excellent players, and also by the wealth of material in the Freshman class.

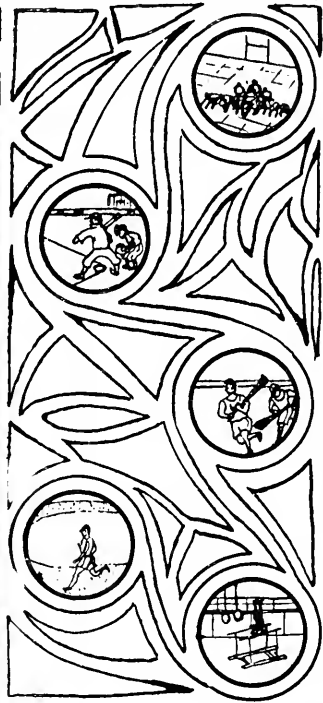

During the season a well-arranged schedule will be played, all the games being played at home with the exception of one. The success of the team thus far is very good despite the handicaps of the beginning. Graduation will remove but one member of the 'Varsity, and consequently an exceptionally strong foundation for next year's team will be available.

The schedule for the present season is given below:

THIS year's gymnasium team started in work with the loss of Tremlett and Collins, two members of last year's team, who were point winners. The remaining members of the team have worked hard and feel confident of a successful season. Out of the Freshman class Bowen and Horcasitas have made good and can be counted on as future stars on the parallel bars. Horner, of the 1907-1908 team, has returned to college and adds much strength to the team. Four men will be lost by graduation, but the remaining members will form a strong nucleus for next year's team.

Wrestling Club

DURING the winter months, when the icy blasts and deep snows prohibit participation in outdoor sports, such diversions as basketball and swimming occupy the attention of those athletically inclined. In the college world, another sport, that of wrestling, is rapidly gaining a foothold and being recognized as a valuable asset. This is evident when it is mentioned that nearly all of the Eastern colleges have wrestling teams, which fill regular schedules.

At Lehigh the history of wrestling is but a matter of a few months, as it was in November, 1908, that the first call for candidates was issued and steps taken to procure the essential wrestling mat. A subscription list was started among the students to raise the necessary funds, and after a thorough canvas it was found that only half of the amount needed had been secured. At this juncture an appeal was made to our President, Dr. Drinker. He, with that characteristic interest he has always manifested in the welfare of the student body and the success of manly athletics at Lehigh, responded immediately. He, in turn, appealed to several of our trustees and alumni and through their generosity and that of Dr. Drinker the mat was soon secured.

With the appearance of the mat the deep interest in the sport became apparent. A large number of candidates came out for the team and the remainder of the scholastic year was spent in learning the rudiments of the game. In the latter part of March, 1909, a tournament was held, the results of which were not of enough significance to warrant mention here.

With the close of the past football season about twenty men answered the call for candidates and started work with much enthusiasm. A petition for recognition and permission to arrange a schedule was granted by the Athletic Committee. The latter also agreed to finance the team and give it a thorough trial, with promise to probably establish it as a sport if the student body gave it its support this year.

Realizing that wrestling probably requires more individual attention than any other sport, plans were laid to secure a professional coach. With the permission of the Athletic Committee and by a subscription among the candidates and the further earnest assistance of Dr. Drinker and Mr. John Fritz, W. A. Wilbur, A. H. Cleaver, W. A. Lathrop and Charles L. Taylor, the required fund was soon raised and a coach immediately secured.

Under his tutelage a team was rapidly rounded into form, and it is expected to give a good account of itself, in view of the fact that this is its initial season. With the publication of this book it is too early to tabulate the full schedule, but meets have been secured with such teams as those of the Navy and Cornell.

Lehigh's Progress

THERE is a trite aphorism to the effect that nothing is stationary—that there must be improvement or decadence, advancement or retrogression. This is as true of educational institutions as of individual or business concerns, but it behooves us constantly to take account of stock to determine whether our progress is satisfactory.

Numerically the attendance at Lehigh is satisfactory and the Trustees are to be commended on their wisdom in recognizing that the success of a college cannot be gauged by the number of students in attendance. The recent utterance of the President of the Board of Trustees that it is their purpose to nickel-plate the existing courses rather than to strive for numerical growth is indicative of a wise policy.

It is manifest on all sides that during the past five years the University has made great strides in advance. The entrance requirements have been very materially increased, thereby making it mean more than ever to be a Lehigh man. The traditional high scholastic standard has been maintained and the curriculum has been rearranged to include subjects demanded by modern technical progress. The new Fritz Laboratory and the new Mining Laboratory will give Lehigh facilities for instruction in Testing of Materials, Cement, Concrete, Road Materials, Hydraulics and Ore Dressing, unsurpassed by any college in the country.

The most marked improvements, however, are those looking to the increased comfort and physical well-being of the student body. Mr. Carnegie's gift of Taylor Hall fills a long-felt want by housing a fair percentage of students on the college grounds.

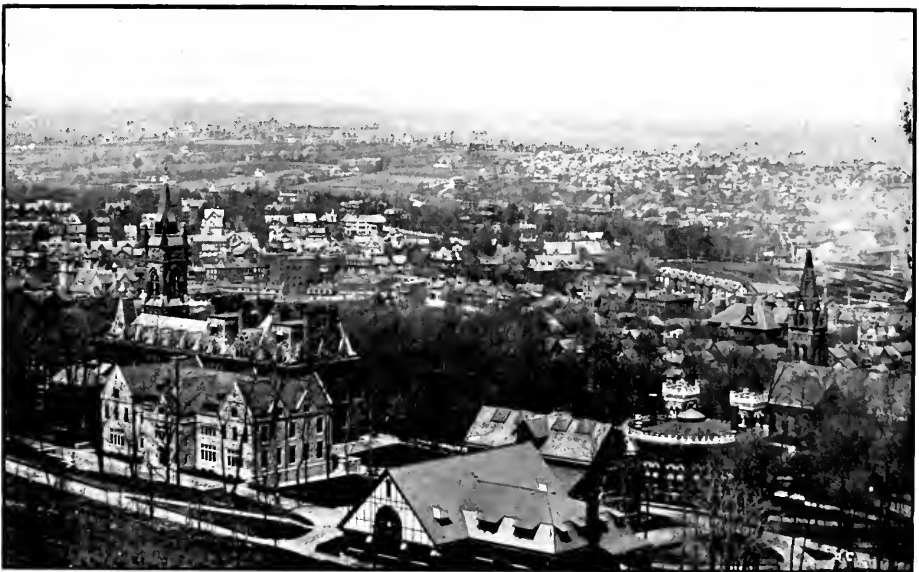

Another similar dormitory combined with fraternity houses on the campus will fully solve this problem. The recent action of the trustees in determining to give financial aid by way of loan in the building of fraternity houses on the University grounds will unquestionably greatly facilitate the erection of such houses. The College Commons has proved popular by supplying wholesome food at cost prices. Drown Hall, as the centre of the social activities of the student body, has proved so valuable in unifying our interests that it is probably the most important single extra-scholastic adjunct we have.

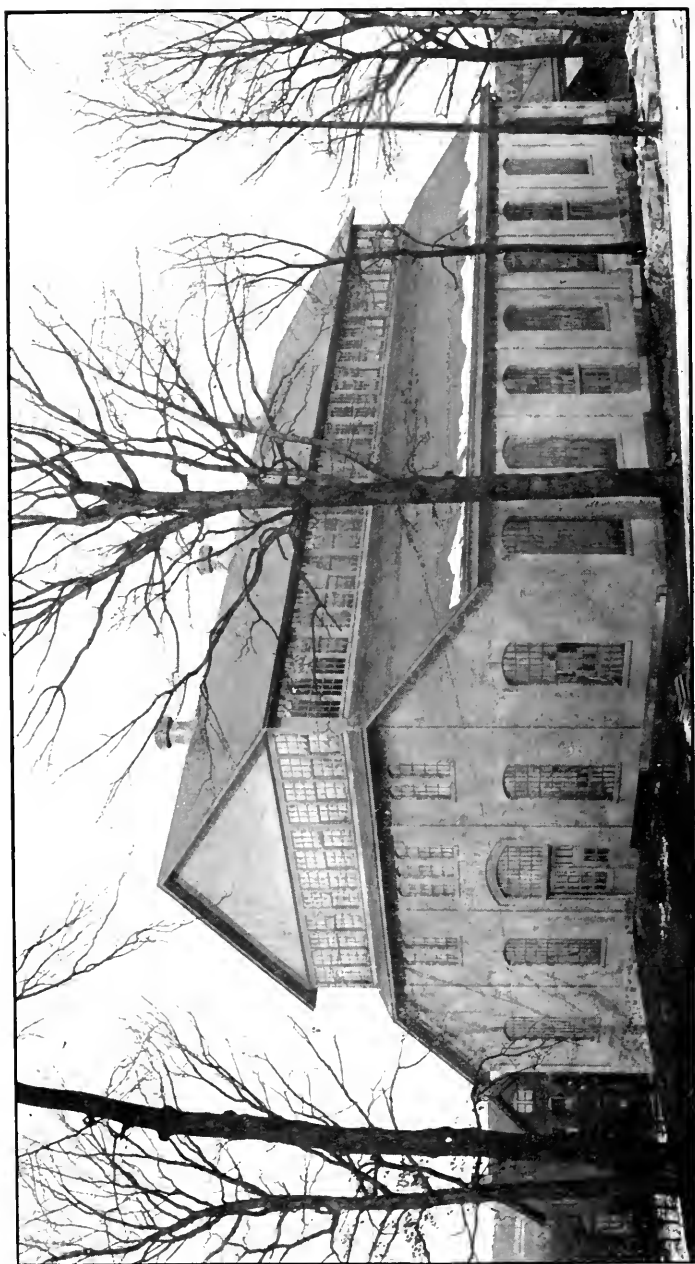

Student self-government under the efficient direction of the Arcadia has been exceedingly beneficial and has given our student body, throughout the college world, a reputation for manly self-control.

Lehigh's prospects are bright. The difficult curriculum insures efficient scholastic training. The physical well-being of the students is adequately provided for, and the students through self-government are made to feel that the treatment they receive is fair and unbiased.

It is no idle boast to prophesy a brilliant future for our beloved Alma Mater.

The Fritz Engineering Laboratory

REALIZING the great need of an adequate laboratory for the testing of materials, the eminent engineer, Mr. John Fritz, of Bethlehem, known as the father of the Steel Industry in the United States, and a member of the Board of Trustees dating from the founding of the University, has recently donated to the University the funds for the erection and thorough equipment of an Engineering Laboratory. The building was designed by Mr. Fritz, and is being erected under his personal supervision. It has been named by the Trustees "The Fritz Engineering Laboratory." As soon as the building is finished it will be thoroughly equipped with a general testing section for testing iron and steel, a cement and concrete section, and a hydraulic section. It is expected that the building will be finished and the equipment installed before June 1, 1910. The equipment will be used by the Civil Engineering Department as an aid to the instruction of those students of the University in any Department who take the courses in Strength of Materials, Hydraulics and Cement.

The building is of modern steel frame construction, 94 feet wide and 115 feet long, with the main central section 65 feet in height, and two side sections of lesser height. The exterior walls which enclose the steel frame are of cement brick lined on the inside with red brick. A traveling crane, operated by electricity and of 10 tons capacity, commands the entire central portion of the building in which the testing of large specimens will be carried on.

The general testing section will be equipped with an 800,000 pound Riehle vertical screw testing machine, capable of testing columns 25 feet long or less, tensile specimens 20 feet long or less, and transverse specimens up to lengths of 30 feet; an Olsen universal testing machine of 300,000 pounds capacity; smaller machines for ordinary tension, compression, transverse and torsion tests; a complete Road Materials testing equipment and a small machine shop. The hydraulic section will occupy the easterly end of the main room and will be equipped with various tanks, weirs, pumps and other hydraulic apparatus for the studying of problems in Hydraulics. The cement and concrete section will have one large room for the making and testing of specimens and one room for the storage of materials.

The Eckley B. Coxe Mining Laboratory

THIS building (now in process of construction) is situated south of Williams Hall and is of dressed sandstone. It is 100 feet long by 75 feet deep, one story high in the front with a raised floor in the rear.

The main part of the building contains the Ore Dressing Laboratory, 40 feet by 70 feet; the west wing contains a chemical laboratory, an assaying room, and a shop; and the east wing the office and recitation rooms. The locker and wash-rooms is located in the basement of the east wing.

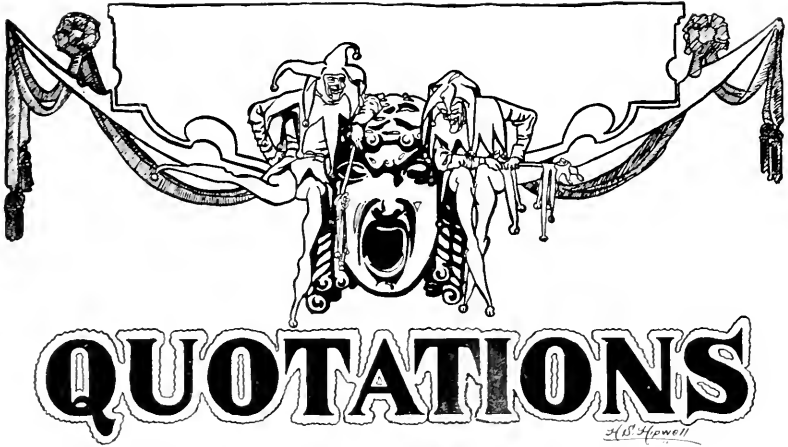

The equipment for this laboratory, made by the Allis-Chalmers Co., will consist of a gyratory crusher, rolls, screens, jigs, Huntington mill, classifiers, concentrators (table and vanner), gravity stamps, copper plates, grinding pan, and cyanide plant, with the necessary apparatus including elevators, feeders, sand-pumps, settling tanks, zinc boxes, filter press, drying and smelting furnace, crawls, blocks and electric motors.

The above machinery will be driven by five separate motors and any one part or all of it can be operated at will, thus enabling experimental studies and tests to be made of individual machines or groups of machines, or of an entire process, as occasion may require.

In this way the entire plant is made flexible and enables combinations of processes in order to determine the best possible method to pursue in the treatment of gold and silver ores, both free milling and sulphides, by amalgamation and cyanide processes, and of lead, copper, zinc, or iron ores, etc., by coarse and fine concentration.

It is expected that this laboratory will be completed and equipped before June 1, 1910. It has been named by the Trustees of the University "The Eckley B. Coxe Mining Laboratory" in memory of one who was universally recognized as a pioneer and a leader in the profession of Mining Engineering in this country and who was an active friend and valued Trustee of the University from its foundation. It is highly fitting that the Engineering and Mining Laboratories of Lehigh University should bear the names of John Fritz and Eckley B. Coxe, and that the record of the friendship and close association of these two great engineers in their lifetime, and their active interest in Lehigh, should be perpetuated by these buildings bearing their names.

LAZARUS, '11—

“Night after night,
He sat and bleared his eyes with books.”

NOW to our story! To be a member of the band it does not require a young robust student, who has broken all of the lung-testers in Rittersville, but rather one who has the spirit of harmony in his soul. Now do not mistake me, kind reader, it also requires a person accustomed to the rabble and congestion of a city street. Another requisite is that at any time an aspirant to this group of juvenile Sousas shall be willing to don a comic costume, e'en though he resemble a white wing.

The editor has been reliably informed that a benefit performance was given by the band for the city of Philadelphia. This delightful performance was given under the guise of a trip with the football team, but to all accounts it was in order to let the music-loving inhabitants of the City of Brotherly Love in on something they had never heard before. Kindly allow me to picture the inspiring scene of twenty (20) young men marching down Market St., clad in fantastic costume and playing as if their souls were in every note. Evenly they marched to the drone of the bass drum and were only to be stopped by the interference of some rude policeman, who had mistaken this bunch of harmony venders for some white wings on a strike.

But to come back: My enthusiasm has carried me too far, for it was the intention of this article not to paint the picture of the band in action but instead to set forth those essentials which every budding musician must fill to play among those who purvey music to Lehigh University. Without further ado, here they are:

Requirements of the Band:

1. Must be a student of the University, with some knowledge of sound and pitch.
2. Must be a good pedestrian and possess one pair of sturdy brogans.
3. Must be well drilled in discipline, otherwise he cannot follow the leader and would gum all attempts at technique in classical stuff.

There is one position open for a student of the Lusitania type, viz: no chest and large paunch, so that he may support the bass drum while playing and eliminate the services of one urchin.

The Secret of Knowledge

"Tell me what is a wise man," asked the Student of the Fool,
"And tell me how to tell him, by some simply stated rule;"
The Fool, he tittered sillily and rocked him to and fro,
"The way to tell a wise man is, how his whiskers grow."

"Ah!" said the Simple Student, "I must be whiskered then,
In order to be envied and admired by all men."
The Fool, he bit his thumb with glee, and burst forth into song,
"The way to tell a wise man is, he grows so wond'rous long."

"Well," said the Simple Student, "I'll grow full nine feet tall, Until I overtower and look down upon them all."
The Fool, he danced upon one leg and jumped upon his hat,
"The way to tell a wise man is, he grows so round and fat."

"Then said the Simple Student, I will fill me up inside,
And thereby expand within and get so very wide."
The Fool, he shook with hidden mirth and cackled loud with glee,
"The way to tell a wise man is, to look at C. L. T."

The Student then waxed very wroth and said: "To me you've lied,
For C. L. T's a skinny man and far from being wide."
The Fool, he simply gibbered and snickered at his spleen,
"The way to tell a wise man is, to call upon the dean."

The Student nearly burst with rage and yelled: "The dean's not tall,
For of our many wise men, he's the shortest of them all."
Again the Fool waxed mirthful, and chuckled inwardly,
"The way to tell a wise man is, to look at 'Bill' Es-ty."

The Student's brain, completely, went and left his skull quite bare,
For on "Bill" Esty's noble face there was no sign of hair.
The Fool, he sobered for awhile and looked on him with pity,
Then smiling brightly, grasped his hand, said: "Welcome to our city."

L'ENVOY

Pass not this poesy quickly o'er, but think and meditate,
And then take all the words above and try to integrate.
For tallness goes with wisdom as it does with lack of fat
And many of our Solomons are four feet 'cross the back;
Some hide their brilliant faces beneath a flock of hair,
While others, not so modest, are content to go it bare.
But when all is said and over, all the rules we have to know
Amount to just this substance, i. e., let nature go.

Cuticulusus

---

NOTE.--From the Latin: Cuticulus, meaning skin and Cusus, a Gaul; hence the Discovery of the North Pole.

Let's make it plain before commencing,
To twang the lyre of poetry's muse,
The song I sing has no intention
The honor system to abuse;
The college and the men I mention
I make no effort to excuse.

Two fellows not of Lehigh—having
With much libation made their peace
With great Gambrinus, sainted chemist
Beer's inventor—found decreased
The limit of the cuts allowed them
To take exams, if so they pleased.

Another night—some more skylarking,
More cuts—and oh, their dreadful case
Total exclusion, most disheart'ning,
Stared them grimly in the face.
“Flunked out,” from College, now departing
(Slow music, please); 'twas dire disgrace.

One thing would save them, some convenience
Like measles, mumps, perhaps a cold
For which some doctor, paid for lenience
Would certify (That story's old
The “profs” in spite of past experience
By this old gag are often sold).

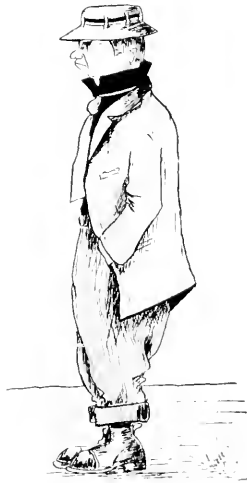

Now Jones, 'twas easy to discover
His head was quite three feet across;
But Smith too quickly to recover
His faking illness was a frost.
Thus Jones the doctor certifies for
But not for Smith at any cost.

Another doctor now they visit,
An idea rattling in Jones' pate,
Once more he shows his evil symptoms,
Once more the doctor takes the bait.
“Name please?” the M.D. asks when called on
To certify to Jones' state.

"John Henry Smith," Tom Jones assured him,
While Smith strove hard his joy to hide.
The doctor wrote, gave Jones the paper;
And then, upon the steps outside,
Smith made thank offering that such genius
In his side partner did reside.

What's the Moral? Nothing stranger
Jones is a pillar of the state,
In Congress keeps us all from danger
While Smith is equally as great
Of city contracts the arranger:
'Twas college life decreed their fate.

"Jim" Myers

"JIM," the students' friend, has been connected with the university since 1867. He drove the first stake in laying out the site for Packer Hall, the third building on the campus, and since that time Mr. Myers has served as janitor of Packer Hall and Faculty messenger. A record that Jim is most proud of is that every diploma issued by this university has passed through his hands.

Previous to his coming to Lehigh, he served in the Civil War, having enlisted in '61 and serving until the troops were mustered out in '65. He took active part in the battles of Fredericksburg and Gettysburg, being wounded in the last-named fight.

Jim always has a pleasant greeting for everybody, and there is not a man who has attended Lehigh whom he does not know. During the first few days of the opening of college he is frequently mistaken by the Freshmen as the president or some other dignitary, but later on they become acquainted with his real position and realize that it would be hard for Lehigh to get along without him.

"Billy" Burkhardt

HERE is one of the main props. of Lehigh athletics, for men may go, captains may go, and coaches go but Billy stays on forever. If Lehigh is successful Billy has a lot to do with it, but in failure Billy is not to blame for he is always working for victory for Lehigh.

He was born in South Bethlehem in 1869 and in 1887 left this region for Pittsburg. In '93, however, the lure of the Pennsylvania Dutch called him back, and for three years he was employed at the steel works as a climber for Roger Johnson. During the last thirteen years he has been on Lehigh Field acting in the triple capacity of trainer, groundkeeper, and policeman, filling all three positions creditably.

Billy knows the traditions of Lehigh athletics and he knows how to train men, both qualities going to make up men who will fight for Lehigh and who are physically able to do so.

"Pop" Keller

"POP," whose smiling countenance graces Drown Hall, was born on April 24, 1850. For twenty-one years he was employed as baggage-master at the North Penn Station, South Bethlehem, and for the last twenty-four years he has occupied the position of janitor, the greater part of this time being in the Lehigh Valley General Offices. In 1907 he helped in equipping the dormitories with furniture and during the first year of their occupancy he was janitor. Since the completion of Drown Hall, however, he has been responsible for its neat appearance. In such a position as he holds, Pop comes in contact with all of the students and by all he is liked immensely.

"Jimmy" Mahoney

IT has often been wondered why we had such a good man in such a poor building as our gymnasium, and the only solution available is that we are keeping Jimmy until we get our new "gym." At any rate there is no denying that Jimmy is a good man for his position and that in his adjunct duties of referee for boxing bouts and hand ball player, he excels.

Jimmy is thirty-five years old and ten of those years have been spent in the Pennsylvania Steel Company and Bethlehem Steel Company works, developing his splendid physique. During the last eight years he has been in the gymnasium, where he is just as much of an autocrat at executing the rules of that institution as Speaker Cannon is in executing the rules of the House of Representatives in Washington.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and it laughs at you."

THROM, '11 (in Junior Railroads)—"Professor, what kind of mud do they use for mud-blocks?"

POFFENBERGER (Sophomore Surveying)—"Hold your rod plumb."

PRIESTLY, '11—"I don't have to. Turn the hairs in your instrument."

GRAHAM, '11—"Do you know your strength to day, Butz?"

G. BUTZ, '10—"No; but I know my weakness."

PROF. MCKIBBEN (in Sophomore Construction)—"Now let me see  $732 \times 4672 \div 906 \times 6472 = 158,080,722,816$ , in round numbers. I wish gentlemen that you might all practice a little mental arithmetic."

PROF. LANDIS—"Homer's Odyssey was written about 1200° before Christ."

JAHNE, '10 (in Sanitary Engineering)—"A core wall in a dam prevents the burrowing of muskrats, woodcock and other small animals."

PROF. MEAKER—"Those who expectorate on the floor must not expect to rate high in the class."

POFFENBERGER, '11 (observing that the clock in Packer Hall has stopped)—

BLEY, '11—"C is a constant that varies."

ON AN ECONOMICS EXAM. PAPER—"Cattle may be divided into two classes, fixed and circulating."

G. STOCKTON, '10 (after a Mining Quiz)—"Professor, you don't expect us to put down every thing we know in an hour, do you?"

INSTRUCTOR IN CHEMISTRY—"Baird, what is the heat of combustion?"

BAIRD, '12—"The heat necessary to combust coal."

THOMPSON, '12—"Tell me not in caustic numbers,
Early rising makes us men;
That the lad's a fool who slumbers
Sweetly on till half-past ten."

PROF. PALMER (in German)—"You men can all pass this examination with ease, if you have a mind to."

SNYDER, '12 (in Construction)—"Professor, do they use blast furnaces just to make slag for cement?"

PORTER, '12 (finding that the lesson sheet had been taken from the bulletin board)—"Where in H— is that lesson sheet?"

PROF. LAMBERT (in back of Porter)—"It's not there, it's in my room."

DUNN, '12—"Professor, I can't get this problem."

PROF. MILLER—"What are you trying to do Dunn, making up a little theory?"

MR. FOGG (in Strength of Materials)—"Gentlemen and Mr. Dawson please look this way."

BECHHOEFFER, '10—"A falling dam always causes a considerate loss of life and property."

PROFESSOR MCKIBBEN—"Horcasitas, how long did you study on this subject last night?"

HORCASITAS, '11—"Not at all."

PROFESSOR MCKIBBEN (failing to hear)—"I beg your pardon?"

HORCASITAS—"About two hours."

TARBELL, '11—"The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year.
Not cold enough for whiskey, hot,
But far too cold for beer."

GAY, '10—"Love is war. For further particulars see Sherman."

PROF. LANDIS—"Gentlemen, I will now describe a typical type of this furnace."

FIRST STUDENT—"That fellow must be a pretty bright scholar."

SECOND STUDENT—"Why?"

FIRST STUDENT—"I see him shined quite often."

PROF. STEWART (class in Business Law)—"Mr. Bley, is slavery abolished in the U.S.?
BLEY, '11 (just awakening)—"No, sir."

PROF. STOCKER—"I guess I'll have to draw this figure to a big scale, so you fellows can see it easier."

MURNANE, '10—"An error is a mistake due to your own dumbness."

R. BUTZ, '10 (in Sanitary Engineering)—"A water works department must provide a sinking fund for liquefying the bonded debt."

Note by DOBSON on Geodesy paper, written just before the Christmas Holidays —"I have obviously not read the lesson, but attendance is worth something. Merry X-mas!"

PROF. WILSON—"Resilience is resistance to work, but not the kind that you students put up."

TARBELL, '11—"I'm going over to Allentown to-night to see John Drew in 'Irreverent George.'"

PRIESTLY, '11 (in Mineralogy)—"Mr. Wheery, was Ilmenite discovered by Prof. Ulmann?"

PROF. STEWART, calling roll in Junior Economics—"Mr. Cannon."

CANNON, '11 (weakly)—"Here."

PROF. STEWART—"Well then make a noise like one."

PROF. FRANKLIN—"If we take a distance infinity and then go beyond that——."

SEGUINE, '13 (taking Dynamo and Motors)—"I don't anticipate much difficulty with this subject as a very dear friend of mine has taken it before and has given me all his reports."

PROF. STEWART—"Some people think art is only for women of both sexes."

SHOEMAKER, '10—"Say lend me a sheet of drawing paper, will you?"

SMITH, '10—"Sorry but I am just using my last piece. You can get some up at the Supply Bureau."

SHOEMAKER, '10—"Yes I know but I'd rather get it at Pete Koch's, it's cheaper."

PROF. WILSON—"You can't set up your thinking machine like a camera and take a shot at the answer."

Note—Yes we know that this was in last year's book but Prof. Wilson got it off again, so we had to repeat it.

STUDENT (at Mealey's on Saturday Night)—"May I have the next dance?"

MEALYITE—"Honest you could kid, but I'm tuk."

STUDENT (accosting grizette)—"Hello there, can't I take you home?"

G.—"I don't care."

S.—"Where do you live?"

G.—"Butztown."

S.—"Gee, I almost forgot I had to meet a fellow down here at nine o'clock. So long."

Soliloquy

---

Now football has gone
And the rooters' fierce song,
    No longer from the bleachers sounds shrilly;
The campus, once fair,
Now most lonely and bare
    And the wind sweeps around all too chilly.

The Freshman look worried
And the Soph. is kept hurried
    To make up the lessons, not done.
The Junior's whole life
Now with study is rife;
    And the Senior is kept on the run.

The books oft neglected
Now eagerly dissected
    And work with a vim keeps us humming;
"Mark" Anthony's dear,
No time now to cheer,
    For the cold merciless "mid-years" are coming.

Metamorphosis

---

A "Frosh" there was and he made his prayer,
Even as You and I,
For his books to bask in learning's glare;
We call them products of "hot air,"
But the "Frosh," he called them his chances rare,
Even as You and I.

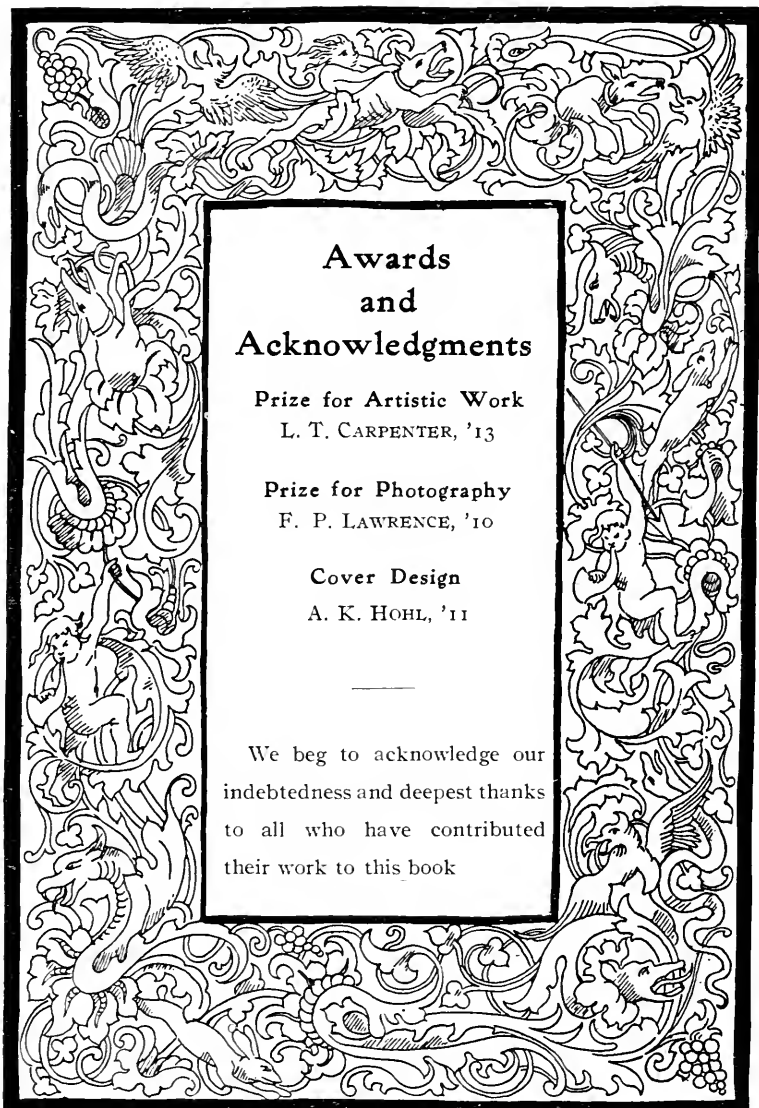

A Soph. he was with his efforts lent,
Even as You and I.
To pass his stuff he was ever bent,
And to his classes he always went,
For nights with study he constantly spent,
Even as You and I.

A Junior he was but with evil beset,
Even as you and I,
For what with the fellows he always met
And off to the "Stadt" he'd be sure to get;
On what happened now you could safely bet,
Even as You and I.

At last, as a Senior, his chances he sunk,
Even as You and I.
His books he considered a lot of junk,
Excuses for cuts he'd always hunt,
But it wasn't long before the Senior flunked,
Even as You and I.

The entire page is framed by a highly detailed, symmetrical border. It features a variety of motifs including stylized flowers, leaves, and animals. On the left side, there is a large, ornate floral design that resembles a peacock's tail. On the right side, there is a large, ornate floral design that resembles a peacock's tail. The border is composed of many small, intricate details that create a rich, textured appearance.
